LONDON, OCTOBER 9.

LAST ſaturday was obſerved by the Jews, as a day of faſting and humiliation, in order to atone and expiate for their ſins of the laſt year, according to the ordinance of Moſes, mentioned in the xvith chapter of Leviticus. It was kept in ſo ſtrict a manner, that there was not an Iſraelite to be ſeen in the ſtreets from friday night at ſix, to ſeven the next evening; a great many of them were in the ſynagogue all that time; neither did any of them, during that ſpace of time, either eat, drink, or even indulge themſelves with a pinch of ſnuff.

We hear from Wexford in Ireland, that three ladies of that town have lately reſolved to enter into the ſtate of matrimony, and agreed to celebrate their nuptials on the ſame day.—They are Grandmother, Mother, and Daughter.

Written in the window of an Inn at Falmouth.

I Have ſeen the ſpecious vain Frenchman; the trucking, ſcrub Dutchman; the tame, loſt Dane; the ſturdy, ſelf-righted Sweed; the barbarous Ruſs; the turbulent Pole; the honeſt, dull German; the pay-fighting Swiſs; the ſubtil, ſplendid Italian; the ſalacious Turk; the ever-warring, lounging Malteſe; the piratical Moor; the proud, cruel Spaniard; the bigotted, baſe Portugueſe; their countries: And hail again Old England! my native land.

Reader, if Engliſhman, Scotchman, Iriſhman, rejoice in the freedom, that is felicity of thy own country, and maintain it, ſacred, to poſterity.

Ap. 14, 1753. COSMOP.

It is reported that a number of Spittalfields journeymen weavers will embark with the Palatines, in order to ſettle in South-Carolina.

OCTOBER 11.

The Ruſſian troops in Poland are not to evacuate that kingdom till next ſummer; they are to have winter quarters aſſigned them in Poland, Lithuania, and Courland.

A correſpondent at Paris writes, that the Jeſuits are moving Heaven and Earth to re-eſtabliſh themſelves in France. In the parliament of Provence they have obtained a majority in their favour; in thoſe of Grenoble, Beſancon, Dijon, and Metz, they have gained many votes; that of Douai is unanimous for them; and even in the parliaments of Paris, Rouen, Rennes, Toulouſe, Bourdeaux and Pau, which have been ſo ſtrenuous againſt them, they are now ſaid to have ſeveral powerful friends.

The value of the preſents made by his Portugueſe Majeſty to the Count la Lippe, at his departure, it is ſaid, amounted to near 30,000l. ſterling.

We are informed the marine appointments are now regulating on a new plan, and ſuch as will render the future ſtate of the navy funds much leſs in arrears than has been experienced for ſome years.

This week four cloth-weavers were engaged for Carolina, where we are informed this manufacture is going to be eſtabliſhed.

OCTOBER 13.

The limits of a news-paper are too ſmall to do juſtice to the memory of that great and worthy Peer, his grace the late Duke of Devonſhire; but let it be obſerved, that all the excellent qualifications of his family were united in his perſon; that all which can adorn human nature, or fill the ſoul of man, he was poſſeſſed of; that his virtues were too numerous to be recounted, too numerous for any ONE man to know. Thoſe who knew him beſt can beſt ſpeak his eulogium by the plaineſt truth: Of his noble and illuſtrious anceſtors it is neceſſary to ſay a few words, and they ſhall be as few as poſſible.

To his great grandfather (the firſt Duke of Devonſhire) we owe the REVOLUTION, which reſcued our liberties, by the expulſion of the Stuarts; and conſequently it may be ſaid, that to the ſame excellent Lord we owe the preſent family on the throne. Had it not been for the great and noble ſtand that he made againſt the tyrant STUART and his miniſters, we had now been ſlaves, and prerogative held over us with an iron hand; for too many of the Great were then, a baſe ſycophant crew! who cared not to whom, nor by what means, they ſold the liberties of their country, provided they could at that price pay their court, and enrich themſelves.

It is impoſſible to fix the æra when the family of CAVENDISH took upon them to be the defenders of liberty and the Engliſh conſtitution, unleſs we take it from their origin; for ſuch a ſpirit of virtue and ſtrict juſtice between Prince and people, have been ſo remarkably hereditary in the family, that one can hardly ſay the father excelled the ſon, or the ſon the father. Not one of his noble family was ever the ſlave or ſycophant to a tyrant Prince: Sooner than concur in meaſures which were deſtructive of the peace or liberties of their country, they always reſigned, or retired from court.

When Charles II. had admitted into his councils the moſt abandoned of every party, becauſe he found ſuch men the moſt pliable to his purpoſe, by which the adminiſtration became ſo exceſſively odious, that notwithſtanding all his art and great love for his prerogative, he found himſelf in danger; he then reſolved to chuſe a privy council out of the moſt popular of his ſubjects, among whom was the Earl of Devonſhire; but this nobleman ſoon perceiving the ill uſe Charles intended to make of his preſence, and looking upon himſelf as anſwerable to the public, ſhould he keep his ſeat where the moſt deſtructive ſchemes were deviſed and authoriſed, he reſigned, and was afterwards the principal perſon who managed the impeachment againſt Sir William Scroggs, Chief-Juſtice of the King's-Bench, for iſſuing general warrants, and granting a power to officers to ſeize all whom they ſuſpected to be authors, publiſhers, &c. of ſeditious libels, together with their papers.

In ſhort, he became ſo obnoxious to the prerogative Stuarts, that, on the acceſſion of James II. having been inſulted at court by one Col. Culpepper, he diſciplined that creature of deſpotiſm with his cane, for which he was proſecuted in the court of King's-Bench, and by that infamous tool and tyrant of rotten memory, Lord Chief-Juſtice Jefferies, fined 30,000 l. and committed to priſon, the other judges upon the bench meanly and ſycophantly acquieſcing in the enormity; for which, in better times, they were ſeverely reprimanded. He gave his bond for the money, which was afterwards returned him by King William, and lived an illuſtrious exile in Derbyſhire, where he built Chatſworth, the glory of his name, and the monument of his age.

When James had well nigh deſtroyed the conſtitution of England, in order to eſtabliſh his own doctrine of popery, ſlavery, and paſſive obedience, his Lordſhip invited over the Prince of Orange to reſcue thoſe kingdoms from his arbitrary deſigns, and was the firſt who had virtue and courage enough publicly to avow it while James was yet upon the throne. This gave life to the public cauſe, and his great example was its chief ſupport. He raiſed all Derbyſhire, &c. cheriſhed the Princeſs Anne when ſhe ſtood moſt in need of a friend, and was the fountain of his country's deliverance. For this great act he was created a Duke. The preamble of his patent was his trueſt and beſt eulogium. It is in theſe words:

"The King and Queen could do no leſs for one who had deſerved the beſt of them; one, who in a corrupted age, and ſinking into the baſeſt flattery, had conſtantly retained the manners of the antients; and would never ſuffer himſelf to be moved, either by the inſinuations or the threats of a deceitful court. But equally deſpiſing both, like a true aſſertor of liberty, ſtood always for the laws; and when he ſaw them violated paſt all other redreſs, he appealed to us; and we adviſing with him to ſhake off that tyranny, he, with many other Peers drawn over to us by his example and advice, gave us the greateſt aſſiſtance towards gaining a moſt abſolute victory without blood, and ſo reſtoring the antient rights and religion."

His ſon, who was equal to his father, but had not ſuch opportunities of diſplaying his firmneſs and talents, was, on his Grace's death, appointed to all his places and truſts by Queen Anne: But in 1710, when by the intrigues of France, and the Jacobites at home, a Tory miniſtry was appointed, who reſtored to France all the fruits of a ten years glorious and ſucceſsful war, the diſmiſſed his Grace from all his employments, without reflecting on his or his anceſtors ſervices, together with all the other friends of liberty and the revolution. On the acceſſion of the houſe of Brunſwick, his Grace appeared again in his offices, and continued the honeſt and firm friend of his Royal Maſter, againſt all his ſecret and public enemies.

His ſon inherited all his father's virtues, and ſhewed that by his integrity and ſpirit, on all occaſions, he was worty of the name which had been the Patron and Protector of public liberty.

The late Duke (who died the 3d inſtant, in the 44th year of his age) to whoſe memory words cannot do juſtice, was like all the reſt of his illuſtrious houſe, GREAT and GOOD! His amiable talents, his parts, his equanimity, and addreſs, endeared him to all mankind, but moſt to his Sovereign, who early ſaw his principles and his virtues, and loved him from the firſt. In the ſenate, intrepid and ſenſible; in office, faithful and uncorrupt; in private, generous and humane: Without meanneſs he was a friend to the crown, and without faction he was a patron of liberty; therefore it may truly be ſaid, he has not left behind him his equal in either private or public virtues, which thoſe who knew him can well teſtify, or in ſtrict adherence to the conſtitution, which all his public conduct proved. And in no part ſo noble as the latter, for which, after many ſtudied ſlights and affronts, his great and illuſtrious name (which had high honour done to every Prince it ſerved) was, by the miſchievous arts of court intrigues, ſtruck off the liſt of Privy Councellors.—Poſterity will hardly credit that a name auſpicious to liberty, ſo dear to every true Engliſhman, and once ſo great a champion for the virtue of that council board, ſhould, in the reign of the moſt amiable Prince of the houſe of Brunſwick, be thus rewarded after all its ſervices; And they will ſay it could not have been done if ſome TORIES had not been the chief inſtrument; who ſought every means to put a ſtigma upon the deſcendants of thoſe who accompliſhed the ——. No doubt, therefore, but a baſe ungrateful faction, who, by themſelves and their agents, are daily aiming a deadly blow at the liberties of their country, will now rejoice, and none but ſuch will rejoice, for a generous and diſcerning public will unceaſingly mourn the loſs of ſuch an univerſal friend.

It is worth remarking, that the late election to the Crown of Poland, gives us the moſt ſtriking inſtance that can be poſſibly imagined, of the effect the late war in Germany has had, in prejudice to the power of the court of Verſailles. If we look back century paſt, the retroſpection will ſhew the amazing influence of France in the choice of Poliſh Kings; and if we take the ſlighteſt review of the public tranſactions of a few months in Poland, ſince the death of Auguſtus, we ſhall find that her intereſt there has actually dwindled into nothing. Nay, into ſuch a ſtate of abjectneſs has ſhe fallen, that her recommendation was not only rejected, but her ambaſſadors have been publicly treated with ſcorn, and driven from thence with contempt. Yet this, O Britain! is the power that dares to inſult thee, in diſregard of the moſt ſolemn treaties, and in defiance of the ſuperior value of thy courageous ſons!—But ſhe dares to do it, becauſe ſhe knows thy rulers poſſeſs only the arbitrary inclinations, and not the treaſury of the Noble Poles!

We hear from Milford that ſome light-houſes are ordered to be erected for the better ſecurity of the winter navigation on the coaſt of Wales.

There lies buried in the pariſh church at Dunſtable in Bedfordſhire, 33 miles from London, in the road to Cheſter, a woman, who, as her Epitaph teſtifies, bore, at three ſeveral times, three children at a birth, and five at a birth, two other times.

OCTOBER 16.

Thurſday night the duke of Devonſhire's will was opened, when the following codicil appeared in his Grace's own handwriting, dated July 23. "I give to General Conway Five "Thouſand Pounds, as a teſtimony of my friendſhip for him; "and my ſenſe of his honourable conduct, and friendſhip for "me."

His Pruſſian Majeſty propoſes to render the dutchy of Cleves, and the other places he poſſeſſes in its neighbourhood, the flouriſhing receptacles of induſtrious perſons of all nations; in order to which, all the fortifications, except thoſe of Weſel, are to be entirely demoliſhed, no troops to be quartered in them, the taxes reduced, all the high roads improved as well as repaired, ſeveral new canals made, and every encouragement given that may invite manufacturers to ſettle in thoſe countries.

We learn from Rome, that his Holineſs intends to erect and endow a new college for promoting the fine arts, in which there will be profeſſors of anatomy, ſtatuary, ſculpture, painting, graving, and architecture; and where a large number of pupils will be commodiouſly lodged and boarded, at a very ſmall expence. This new eſtabliſhment is to bear the title of the Roman ſchool.

They write from Leipſick, that the carrying out of Saxony any white clay or earth, which they uſe in their porcelaine fabrick, is prohibited under the penalty of death.

Extract of a letter from Hamburgh, October 5.

"We learn from Peterſburgh that the Senate, to whom the Empreſs had ſent all the affidavits, and the depoſitions relating to the attempt made by Microwitz to deliver the late unfortunate Prince Ivan, has concluded its deliberations, and declared Microwitz guilty of high treaſon, and worthy of death. Not contented with pronouncing this ſentence, they have preſented a warm and animated addreſs to her Imperial Majeſty, entreating her to have ſpeedy and exemplary juſtice executed on this offender, and not to let the tenderneſs of her compaſſion and humanity go ſo far, as to mitigate the puniſhment he deſerves, or to conſider him, as in any reſpect, an object of pity. It is ſaid, on the other hand, that powerful interceſſion is made in behalf of Microwitz, and that this interceſſion is made by thoſe who placed ſo far their confidence in this officer, as to ſend him OUT OF HIS TURN, to mount guard in a garriſon where a priſoner of ſuch diſtinction and conſequence was kept. Be that as it may, it is certain that her Imperial Majeſty has ſent an anſwer to the Senate to the following amount: That it is their buſineſs to judge according to the evidence that has been exhibited to them; but that it is her prerogative to decide whether or no, that judgment is to be executed with rigour, or to be TEMPERED BY MERCY. This anſwer occaſions much ſpeculation; and it is yet a matter of doubt, whether the prerogative will be contented with the blood of the innocent, or proceed to ſhed that of the guilty.

They write from Vienna, that Count Poniatowſki, who is a Major General in the ſervice of the Empreſs Queen, and elder brother to the king of Poland, is arrived there, charged, as it is ſaid, with an important commiſſion from his Poliſh majeſty, which may tend to reconcile this court to the late election. The object of this commiſſion is not known with certainty: it is however conjectured, that the count is come to demand one of the archduchеſſes in marriage for his brother.

OCTOBER 18.

We are aſſured that his grace the late Duke of Devonſhire, who, as a teſtimonial of General Conway's diſintereſted virtue and patriotiſm, has bequeathed to him a legacy of five thouſand pounds, did, on that General's diſmiſſion, ſend a friend to him with an offer of a thouſand pounds a year, which was declined as nobly and diſintereſtedly as it was offered. It is a pleaſure to us, in an age ſo corrupt, to mention theſe inſtances of generoſity, public ſpirit and real virtue: And we wiſh they may ſtrike our readers with ſo much force, that the love of our country and contempt of money may no longer be confined to a very few examples. One of the brighteſt of thoſe few is now taken away by death, to the great misfortune of England! That incomparable nobleman was the fourth duke in a direct deſcent, remarkable all for their ſpotleſs integrity, and attachment to the freedom and conſtitution of this country: And it is no leſs remarkable, that for ſo long a period all the deſcendants of the family have been and are men of ſtrict honour, and moſt irreproachable character.

When the laſt letters left Vienna, it was ſaid than reported, that the truce with the Ottoman Porte had been renewed for 25 years.

The King of Spain has reſolved to eſtabliſh a foundery for printing types, under the direction of one Eudaldy Paradell, from whoſe capacity they expect to carry this eſtabliſhment to as high a degree of perfection as in any other country. His Catholick Majeſty grants the ſaid Paradell an annual penſion of 100 piſtoles, with ſeveral prerogatives, in conſideration of which he engages to bring up apprentices, and to learn them this art.

OCTOBER 20.

The laſt letters from Poland aſſert, that the Count Braneſkiſki, Caſtelan of Cracow, Prince Lubomirſki Palatin of Lublin, and Count Oſſolinſki, Palatin of Wolhinia, delivered acts of receſs, ſubſcribed them, into the ſupreme court of judiciary in that capital, on the 20th ult. By which the ſaid Noblemen acknowledge the new elected King of Poland their lawful ſovereign.

☞ All who favour the Printer of this Gazette with ADVERTISEMENTS, are deſired to ſignify at Foot how long they would have them continued; otherwiſe they will be inſerted, as uſual, only in three ſucceſſive Papers.

We hear that the French have now orders lying at [illegible] for 20,000 barrels of beef; which the government having intelligence of, stifled out the proclamation to prevent their orders being compleated.—As this was the greatest order the French ever gave before, what can it be for?

The King of Prussia (says an authentic private letter from Warsaw) has written a complimentary letter to the new monarch with his own hand; in which (for his Majesty has shewn it to several of the foreign ministers) is this remarkable expression: "Your Majesty must reflect that as you enjoy a crown "by election, and not by descent, the world will be more ob- "servant of your Majesty's actions than any other potentate in "Europe, and it is but reasonable. The latter being the mere "effect of consanguinity, no more is looked for (tho' much "more is to be wished) from him, than what men are endowed "with in common, but from a man exalted by the voice of his "equals, from a subject to a king, from a man voluntarily elec- "ted to reign over those by whom he was chosen, every thing "is expected that can possibly deserve and adorn a crown. Gra- "titude to his people is the first great duty of such a monarch, "for to them alone (under Providence) he is indebted that he "is one. A king, who is so by birth, if he acts derogatory to "his station is a satire only on himself; but an elected one, who "behaves inconsistent with his dignity, reflects dishonour also "on his subjects. Your Majesty, I am sure, will pardon this "warmth. It is the effusion of the sincerest regard. The ami- "able part of the picture, is not so much a lesson of what you "ought to be, as a prophecy of what your majesty will be."

A gentleman just arrived from the North of Scotland informs, that smuggling was never known more brisk in the Orkney islands than at present, all sorts of teas, brandy, and other French and Dutch articles, being to be purchased at an astonishing cheapness from the number of smugglers driven there thro' the great vigilance of the sea and land officers to the southward.

OCTOBER 23.

The King of Prussia and the Empress of Russia have presented memorials to the King of Poland, in favour of the protestants of that Republick.

His Majesty has been pleased to confer the honour of knighthood on George M'Cartney, Esq; now Sir George M'Cartney, destined British Minister to the court of Russia.

Letters from Amsterdam advise, that great quantities of artillery, warlike ammunition and stores, are now buying up in that city, and divers parts of Holland, on account of the King of Prussia.

It is said the establishment of several victualling offices on the government's account, in the principal ports of Ireland, from which may be supplied, not only the foreign, but domestic demands of the navy, with articles of wholesome, well-cured, salt provisions, under the direction of proper officers, is now upon the carpet, which it has been computed, will be an annual saving of 100,000 l.

OCTOBER 25.

The French King's declaration of the 22ht ult. forbidding the printing or publishing any pamphlet concerning the improvement or administration of the finances, has not been registered by the parliament of Burgundy; that court intending to make remonstrances on the subject, because it appears to them, that a prohibition of such a nature must be very prejudicial to the citizens of the state.

Letters from Warsaw of the 6th instant advise, that the King of Poland, whose whole study appears to be the welfare and happiness of his subjects, is indefatigable in devising measures for the well-governing the kingdom, and for making some salutary amendments in the present system of government, which he designs to make public at his coronation. Several councils have been held at the Prince Primate's to assist his majesty's laudable endeavours.

OCTOBER 27.

Yesterday Sir George Macartney, Knt. set out from his house near Hyde-Park-Corner, on his embassy to the court of Russia.

Yesterday Count de la Lippe set out in order to embark for Portugal.

We hear an additional duty will soon be laid on the foreign importation of Hemp, Hempseed and Flax, particularly from Russia and the Baltick; great quantities, the growth of our own American colonies, being expected over early next spring.

We are informed his Excellency Count de la Lippe is charged with the execution of a special commission from our court to that of Portugal.

It is now said, that for very prudential reasons, never less than five regiments on the British establishment will from henceforth be kept in commission in the provinces of New-York, Pennsylvania, and New-England.

It is expected, that Pensacola in Florida, and two British islands in the West-Indies, will speedily be declared free ports.

We hear a list of all such goods as are hereafter to be deem'd contraband in any of the colonies of North-America, are now making out, and will be sent over by the next packet; according to which his Majesty's sea and land officers, collectors of the customs, &c. are to regulate their conduct with regard to all future seizures.

OCTOBER 30.

His Majesty has been pleased to constitute and appoint the hon. Major-General Thomas Gage, to be General and Commander in Chief of his Majesty's forces in North-America, in the room of the hon. Major-General Sir Jeffery Amherst, Knight of the Bath.

NOVEMBER 1.

The King of France has appointed the Sieur de Nelivot, a Captain of the French foot-guards, to be Governor of the island of Guadalupe, in the room of the Marquis de Bourlamique; and has likewise promoted him to the rank of Major-General in his armies.

Two boards of trade have been held this week on affairs of importance.

It is said, the sum of thirty thousand pounds will be granted next sessions for the better rendering the bason of Pensacola one of the best receptacles for trade and shipping on the British American continent.

It is said, from the nature of divers late memorials from the British West-India planters, there will be an absolute necessity to take off some of the present high duties on sugar, in order to preserve our balance at European markets in this commodity, now undersold very considerably both by the French and Dutch.

Divers utensils for the smelting of copper are are now getting ready to be ship'd for Quebec.

NOVEMBER 3.

We hear, that on a memorial being presented to the Earl of Hertford to the French court, setting forth the illegal proceedings of the Governor of Goree, in attempting to establish a settlement near the river Gambia in Africa, that court has declared its disapprobation of his proceedings, and he is recalled to give an account of his irregular behaviour.

A letter from Petersburg informs, that the Empress of Russia has nobly rewarded the Captain and Lieutenant who so faithfully checked the sedition in which the unfortunate Prince Ivan lost his life. The former has been made a General, and his companion a Lieutenant Colonel, exclusive of pensions for life, and presents to the value of 10,000 rubles.

They write from Paris, of the 5th ult. that by virtue of a new regulation, every planter in the French West-India islands, is obliged to set apart a particular number of acres for the rearing up cattle, poultry, and the necessaries of life; which, it is conjectured, will be a national saving of near a million of livres yearly, which are now sent to Ireland and the British American colonies; and is one great cause why the French islands in time of war are so destitute of provisions, that the natives have often, in cases of a siege, been in danger of starving.

Letters from Malaga mention a great inundation, which has done much damage there.

On Wednesday was held a board of trade, when several American petitions were considered, and agreed to be laid before the ensuing parliament.

A gentleman lately arrived from Dunkirk says, that though the superficials of the works are demolished, the foundations remain visible about three feet under low-water mark; and he counted four large store-houses, containing the materials of the greatest consequence, taken from thence.

By recent letters from the Grenadoes, there is advice, that forty-three sugar-works have been erected in that island, by British subjects, since the peace.

We are informed a considerable magazine of Irish salt provisions, is ordered to be kept at St. Maries-Scilly, for the use of such men of war as may touch there in want of stores.

The plan of a new town in the island of Minorca is lately brought over, which is to be called George-Town, in honour of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. There is a good harbour, and the situation well adapted for trade.

NOVEMBER 6.

We are credibly informed, the merchants of the three American colonies, New-England, Pennsylvania, and New-York, by the late mail, have remonstrated to the ministry, in very moving terms, against the cruel and illegal proceedings of the French governors in the West-Indies, on account of their behaviour to such British subjects as have the misfortune either through stress of weather, or other involuntary causes, to approach their coasts; in which case confiscation and imprisonment ensue. It is said this petition, couched in the strongest terms, will occasion such a fleet to be constantly kept cruizing in the West-Indies, that shall not only revenge the past, but prevent all future insults to the meanest of his Majesty's subjects in that part of the world.

Some letters from Great Poland say, it is asserted there, that the King of the Romans, and the King of Poland, are to marry two sisters, Princesses of Saxony, daughters of Augustus III late King of Poland.

They write from Corsica, that several officers of the malecontents, seduced by motives of gain, formed a resolution to massacre Pascal Paoli, who is now arrived at 80 years of age. They were assembled at a public house to concert measures for the execution of their design, where they let drop some unguarded expressions which escaped in the warmth of their debates, and which were overheard by the master of the house, who gave information thereof. The conspirators were arrested, and carried before Paoli, who addressed himself to them thus: 'Gentlemen, although you proposed to take away my life, which gives 'me a lawful power over your's, I will not take that advantage. 'Return then in peace, and examine from this moment, whether I deserve your enmity. I am ready to submit, if you find 'a single article to lay to my charge.' The officers in confusion confessed their crime, shewed a sincere repentance, acknowledged they were corrupted to the undertaking this base purpose, but without naming their employers. Paoli displayed farther magnimity in not pressing them to a discovery. A rare example of moderation, which will be more admired than imitated.

NOVEMBER 8.

It is expected the final resolution of the French and Spaniards, with regard to their payment of Canada bills, ransom of Manilas, and maintenance of their prisoners in England, will soon be made known to the parties concerned, as it is said, answers have lately been transmitted by the British ambassadors both these courts, relating thereto.

We are informed a resolution has lately been taken to erect some strong fortifications on the island of Anticosti, in the Gulph of St. Lawrence, which from some late surveys has been found to be a place of great consequence, in case of any future war.

We are informed a scheme for imposing a general stamp duty in North America is now finished, upon a new plan, against the ensuing sessions; the profits to be applied for the better security and defence of the colonies.

NOVEMBER 10.

It is reported that a great sum has been offered to the relict of a certain great Statesman for the copies of some of his papers; and that great sums have also been offered her, not to part with them.

TO BE SOLD,

A Plantation on Port-Royal island, containing 315 acres; whereon are a good dwelling-house, kitchen, barn, corn and negro-houses, a garden and orchard, situated on the creek leading to Salt-Water bridge, and is about three miles by water, and five by land, from the town of Beaufort. It hath an exceeding fine landing, where you may go off at the lowest tides; and as there is a fine pasture, renders it very convenient for tending the market. The land is exceeding good for corn and indico, and hath the greatest convenience for reserves of water for making indico, particularly one whose springs have never fail'd. And, as for its situation, it's one of the most healthy and pleasant places on the island; the whole is under very good fence, the rails being almost new: It may be entered upon directly. Any person inclinable to purchase the said plantation, may treat with Mr. John Gordon, in Charles-Town, Capt. Francis Stuart, merchant, in Beaufort, or the subscriber on the said plantation.

RUN AWAY from the subscriber, in October last. A tall negro fellow, named SCIPIO, of the Guinea country, speaks no English; had on when he went away a blue stroud jacket and breeches, much pitted in the face with the small-pox. NEW-YORK, December 17.

By a letter, dated the 8th inſtant, from the Mohawk River, of the beſt aſſurance,

"We are informed that, by the ſtrange conduct of ſome, Sir WILLIAM JOHNSON will have infinite work to do with the Indians.——The diſtreſſed, ſtraggling army are now crawling homeward.——Many left their carcaſes in the woods, and along the lake ſides; a prey to the wolves and other vermin, thro' meer fatigue and want. Some Indians and a few of the Indian officers, are arrived in a ſhocking condition; having been in the woods 26 days, without a morſel, but what they killed, which was but a little for their number. The main body of them, with Capts. Montour, Johnſon, Lieut. Preſton, &c. are expected in a few days at Sir William Johnſon's. They are detained carrying ſome ſick Indians on their backs thro' the woods. [If the advice of Sir William had been attended to, near three years paſt, in all probability we ſhould have had no Indian war; for at that time it was demonſtrable that he could have form'd, upon the ſureſt baſis, ſuch a conſtructure of amity, with the ſix nations, as would, no doubt, have been productive of the moſt ſenſible advantage to the inhabitants here, as well as thoſe at home: But he was abridged of a poor £. 7000, which, if properly applied then, would have prevented all the calamity of a ſcalping war.]
